Wallonia, open to the world at the heart of Europe

Let's start with a little bit of geography... Along with Brussels, Wallonia is the French-speaking part of Belgium. However, English, German and Dutch are also spoken here; it has a privileged position in the heart of Europe - out of Europe's 500 million consumers, 60% are located within a 1,000-kilometre radius around Wallonia - which makes it an economic crossroads of choice, naturally open to the world, offering a whole host of advantages to foreign investors.

Setting up in Wallonia means you'll be locating your business in the immediate vicinity of Brussels (1,700 European HQs, European Union, NATO, 2nd world journalistic centre after Washington DC...), and right in between Paris, Amsterdam, London, Luxembourg and Frankfurt. This ideal position gives you access to a market of 375 million consumers within a four-hour journey by road, plus distribution facilitated by a highly developed infrastructure, including five multi-modal platforms, particularly those on the borders with Germany, the Netherlands and France. Another huge advantage in this abundant part of Europe is that you have rapid access to infrastructure tailored to your needs. In fact, over two hundred business parks await you, offering large spaces and buildings that are available immediately. Ideally located in Europe's major communication corridors, they are equipped at a real estate cost that is one of the lowest in Europe.

It should also be noted that rates of corporation tax are among the lowest in Europe (between 26% and 28%), and there is an attractive tax regime for shareholders and expatriate executives. In addition, the self-funded share of an investment is tax-deductible.

Alongside this attractive tax system, there are significant financial incentives on offer. In fact, European and regional financial support is particularly significant and completely tax exempt: in some parts of the region this financial support can amount to 30% of the investment for large companies and 35% for SMEs.

Finally, the region benefits from several strengths directly linked to its human resources. The personnel you find in Wallonia are productive, competent and multilingual. In fact, their productivity is among the highest in the world and the supportive social consensus ensures business relationships of incomparable quality. It's worth noting that Wallonia is one of the world's largest exporters on a per capita basis. By setting up your business here, you will benefit from an exceptional export culture that is open to the world, as well as financial incentives and a network of more than one hundred economic and commercial attachés throughout the world.

Here are a few figures illustrating this export trend: while Wallonia represents approximately 0.1% of the world's GDP, Walloon companies are responsible for 0.3% of world trade, and nearly 70% of the overall turnover of Wallonia's firms is derived from exports, giving it one of the highest export rates in the world (EU average: 30%).
